Project title in English	Language teaching textbooks: instruments for applied language teaching methodology
Project title in Italian	Analizzare i manuali per l'insegnamento delle lingue: strumenti per una glottodidattica applicata
Subject area of reference (World University Ranking)	ARTS AND HUMANITIES (including Architecture)
Project summary and VPS' profile	The project aims to support students in gaining awareness of how textbooks used for teaching modern languages are designed and structured. It is thus intended to offer a training course based on practice but firmly anchored in the theoretical principles that form the foundation of teaching practice, starting precisely from the analysis of teaching materials. To support and complement the operational part of the project, in which the student is guided in the analysis, the results of the glottodidactic research work from which the proposal for textbooks of different L2s is derived are presented. The project plans to explore the topics of publishing and textbooks for foreign language teaching in relation to the different CEFR levels. The invited lecturer will cover the above topics as part of the lectures given as part of the Modern Language Teaching and Glottodidactics courses. VPS'Profile The lecturer, a Ph.D. in education or glottodidactics, teaches at the Faculty of Education/Humanities. He/She is in charge of the scientific responsibility of teaching materials.
